Corel Announces CorelFLOW; New graphics offering provides users with quick and powerful diagramming and flowcharting features

OTTAWA, Canada -- Corel Corporation announced CorelFLOW, the Company's new business graphics application for Windows. CorelFLOW allows users to organize information into diagrams and flowcharts by dragging pre-drawn shapes onto a page and connecting the shapes with lines and curves. Available in June, CorelFLOW will carry a suggested list price of $99 US/$129 CDN.

"CorelFLOW allows users point-and-click access to professional-calibre diagrams," said Dr. Michael Cowpland, president and CEO of Corel Corporation. "Users will appreciate the power and flexibility CorelFLOW offers together with its easy-to-use interface."

PRODUCT FEATURES

Using drag-and-drop technology, CorelFlow enables users to create a variety of diagrams including flowcharts, organization charts, schematics, and system diagrams.

CorelFLOW includes the following features:

- a library of style patterns
- hundreds of drag & drop symbols
- OLE 2 support
- hierarchial diagrams
- smart links
- on-screen text and line editing
- 100 True Type fonts
- 10 drawing layers
