To import an item from an Image Integrator library into a graphic box in the current QuarkXPress document, select the desired graphic box. Then click on the item in the Image Integrator library that is to be imported into the document. Next, select Place from the palette's Item menu. Image Integrator imports the graphic into the selected graphic box. A picture may also be imported into the currently selected graphic box by dragging the item from the Image Integrator library onto the document.
