Search

The screenshot shows a window titled "File Wiz 1.00" with a search interface. At the top, there is a dropdown menu labeled "Group names". Below it is a text input field with the placeholder text "Search by other text?". A large, empty text area is positioned below the input field. At the bottom of the main window, there is a row of four buttons: "search for a file", "results of search", "enter a new file", and "maintenance". To the right of these buttons are three icons: a close button (X), a help button (?), and a search button (magnifying glass).

The search screen is designed to allow you to enter as little information as search criteria or as much as you like. You may search by group id or search all groups. You may narrow the search further by entering a portion of the text that is stored in the description field of the file that you are trying to find. The text entry must match exactly if it is used. Once the selections have been made depress the results tab to see the results of the search.

Entry of a file into the system is a simple process. You must define the file in the file list box and then provide some description. If the file is a text file you may submit some portion of the text as the description simply by depressing the glasses button at the bottom left of the screen. If the file is a zip file and contains a description file within, depressing this button will cause file wiz to call pkunzip to extract the FILE_ID.DIZ from the zip file to be used as a description. You may also enter your own description text.

You must choose a group name from the group box located below the description. Group names are defined by you on the maintenance screen and you may have as many as you like. Each entry must have a group name associated with it and a description.

Below the file list box on the left of the screen is a dropdown list that may be used to select only certain kinds of files, i.e. extensions, *.ZIP, *.TXT, etc. You may enter the types of qualifiers that you will use.

Once all data has been defined depress the submit button to enter the file into the database.

Results

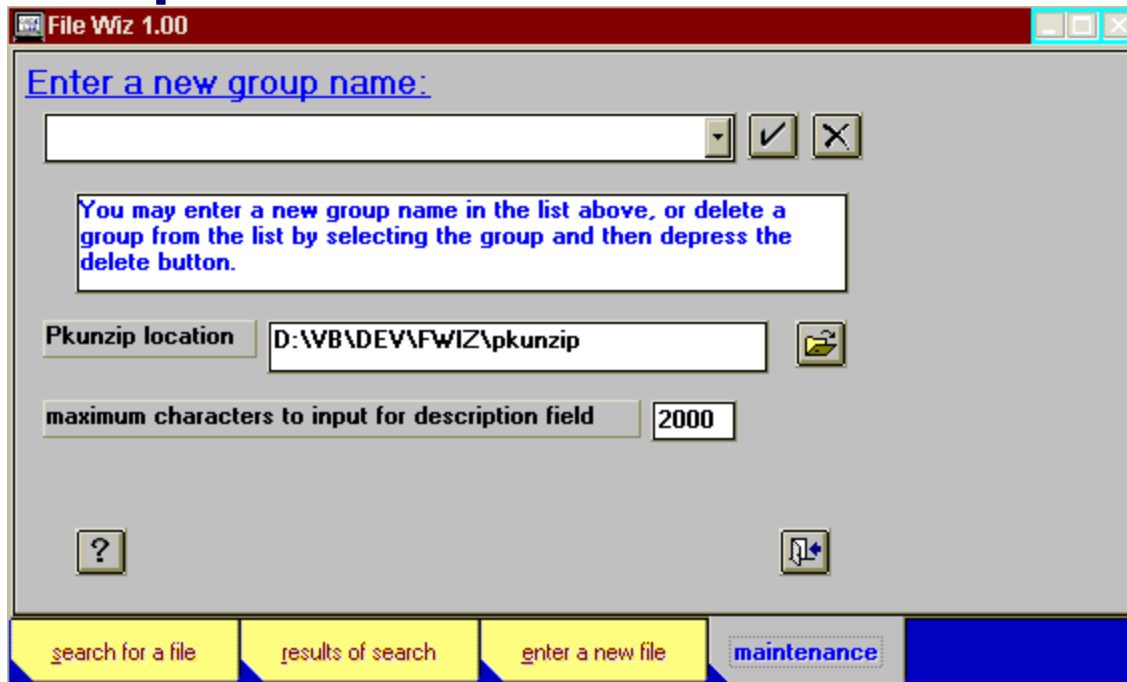

The results screen will display the results of a search defined in the search screen. If your not able to find a particular file, try going to the search screen and clear the group name selected, this will search all groups and display all entries in the results screen.

You may delete entries and move from one to another with the navigation buttons above the description.

Groups

The groups screen is really a maintenance screen for the program, here you may delete group name, enter new group names define the length of text to be used for text entry descriptions, and define the location of PKUNZIP.EXE to be used to extract description files from zip files.
