

A huge arched gate of mudbrick provided entrance and egress from the city through the huge Middle Bronze II ramparts. This model shows the twin towers looming over anyone approaching the city. Between the towers a true arch, dating to the mid-18th century B.C.E., changed our understanding of when the true arch was introduced in human history. Heretofore historians have cited later Near Eastern structures as the earliest use.