

Since 1980 the synagogue has been undergoing both excavation and reconstruction. This view shows the partially erected portals, three of them, that gave entry through the major wall facing south toward Jerusalem. In front of the building worshippers walked through a large, open courtyard and advanced up the steps, seen here, to the interior of the synagogue.