

Registration

SystemInfo Component for Delphi.

There are two different options for registration. You can register the component in its compiled state, or you can register the component including source code.

When you register you will receive:

Compiled version:

- * The latest compiled version of the SystemInfo component on a floppy disk or via Internet E-mail.
- * Elimination of the requirement to have Delphi running while the component is in use.
- * The right to use the component, royalty free, in any application.
- * A component help file and keyword file that can be integrated into the Delphi help system.
- * Free minor upgrades. These include bug fixes and any minor changes up to the next major version.
- * Free technical support for the life of the component.

Source code version:

- * The latest version of the SystemInfo component, both compiled and source code, on a floppy disk or via Internet E-mail.
- * Elimination of the requirement to have Delphi running while the component is in use.
- * The right to use the component, royalty free, in any application.
- * A component help file and keyword file that can be integrated into the Delphi help system.
- * Free minor upgrades. These include bug fixes and any minor changes up to the next major version.
- * Free technical support for the life of the component.
