Hi Windows users!

Here's a spiffy little utility for you. If you're sick of the default green hypertext color for WinHelp and Multimedia Viewer, then this applet's for you! Jump Color was written with VB 3.0, and if you don't have the VBRUN300.DLL on your system, it won't run (see installation instructions below).

Jump Color is not free! If you like this utility enough to use it and keep it, please pay for it. It's only US$5.00...

To register:
  a) In Compuserve:
      Contact me by E-Mail at 73122,3125

  b) US Postal Service:
    Check, Money Order, or Cash (yes, I still accept CA$H) to:
    Screaming Tiki Software
    P.O. Box 515
    Cocoa, FL 32923-0515, USA

To install Jump Color:
By the time you read this file, you should have the program files in a special directory. If this isn't the case, then:

1) Create a new directory (e.g. c:\jumpcolr).

2) Copy these three files contained in the unzipped JMPCLR.ZIP to the new directory:
      jumpcolr.exe
      jumpcolr.hlp
      jumpcolr.wri

3) Move the fourth file, cmdialog.vbx, to your Windows System directory.

4) Make sure you have the file vbrun300.dll in your Windows System directory. If you don't have it, you can obtain this file from CompuServe (GO WINSHAR, LIB 1, 'VBRUN3.ZIP'). Please note that there are two currently known versions of this file. Make sure you're using the vbrun300.dll dated 4-28-93.

5) Create a Program Item in the Program Group of your choice using Program Manager. (Read your Windows manual for detailed instructions on this).

6) Enjoy!
