Introduction

Reminders for Windows provides a simple means of creating on-screen reminders for important events. Event reminders are triggered when the specified time and date occurs.

Reminders can be created to trigger messages on a daily, weekly, monthly or annual basis. Reminders can also be used to run programs as scheduled events.

Daily Reminders

Daily reminders display a message at the specified time on one or more selected days. Use daily reminders for messages that you would like to see at several times throughout the week.

Weekly Reminders

Weekly reminders display a message at a specified time once each week on the selected day.

Monthly Reminders

Monthly reminders display a message at a specified time once each month on the day you choose.

Annual Reminders

Annual reminders display a message at a specified time once each year on the month and day you choose.

Hourly Reminders

Hourly reminders display a message at the same time each hour. Use hourly reminders for messages that you want to see throughout the day.

Reminder Messages

When a message reminder is triggered a dialog box is displayed. You can press the [OK] button to confirm the message, or press the [Again] button to display the message again.

The [Again] button works like the "snooze" button on an alarm clock. Annual and Monthly reminders will be displayed again on the next day. All other reminders display a message again in two and a half minutes.

The [OK] button confirms the message and resets the reminder.

Running Programs as Scheduled Events

Reminders can be created to automatically run programs at specified times just like normal messages. Use the [More>>] button to specify the additional information needed to launch a program as a scheduled event.

Adding Sounds to Reminders

Reminders can play a sound file when a message is triggered. Press the [More>>] button to specify the sound file to be played when the message is triggered. Use the [Test] button to display the reminder message and play the selected sound.
