File Search

Seek gives you the ability to build exclusive file lists. The file list window may be cleared at any time or you may continue to build the list with exclusive searches. The searches can be controlled by the templates used and then the lists can be saved to a file for later use.

Alternate file management

Seek can be used in addition to the File Manager to move, copy, execute print and generally manage files on the disk. Once the user understands how to utilize the list building capability of the program it is possible to quickly manipulate files on disk.

All Functions

Once a search has completed you may move all files to a directory, copy all files to a directory, print, edit or launch(run) a file.

Load function

The load function is provided to allow the user to retrieve the contents of one or more directory searches from a saved file. The user provides the filename and the contents of the saved list will be loaded into the window.

Save function

The save function is provided to allow the user to write the contents of one or more directory searches to a list file. The user provides the filename and the contents of the last cumulative search is written to the file. If the file already exists it will be appended .

Print Function

The print function allows the user to print the contents of a text file to system print device.

.Search criteria The search criteria may be entered for each search done. Entry of the criteria may be via keyboard or recalled from the template box. .The template box keeps track of the templates used for searches, this list may be used to recall a template.

Nosubs

The Nosubs options specifies to the program that subdirectories should not be searched. If the option is not checked then the program will search all of the subdirectories in the path.

Default action

Once the search has completed the user may double click one of the files in the list. This action will cause the program to execute the file if it is executable call the editor if the file is a text file or any other appropriate action.
