

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star
Trek: The Next Generation

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

Emissary 46379.1

Benjamin Sisko, bitter towards Picard since the Borg incident at Wolf 359, is assigned to administrate the abandoned Deep Space Nine station near the Bajora and Cardassian border. He becomes trapped in a nearby worm hole believed to have been constructed.

Past Prologue 46400.0*

A suspected Bajoran terrorist (Jeffrey Nordling) seeks asylum on the station when Klingon Duras's sisters suddenly appear. Major Kira is divided between her homeland priorities and her new commitment to Starfleet to employ order and peace in the region.

A Man Alone 46421.5

Amidst prejudiced mobs, Security Chief Odo is implicated in a murder while Keiko (Rosalind Chao) and Miles settle their differences. Sisko relieves the shapeshifter of duty despite his efforts to remain unbiased. Keiko opens a school for children.

Babel 46423.7

O'Brien proves he's a handyman as every system begins to fail on the station. When he falls ill along with more and more people, the doctor and Kira race to find a cure for the life-threatening virus that causes aphasia. Odo recruits Quark.

Captive Pursuit 46430.0*

An alien emerges from the wormhole and despite damage to his ship, he resists offers of assistance. O'Brien befriends him, helps repair his ship, and learns more about him. He discovers his new acquaintance is being hunted for sport.

Q-Less 46531.2

Vash is back in Federation space having dumped Q. Despite his efforts she chooses not to return to him; instead, Vash pursues a business venture with Quark. Sisko blames Q for the intermittent systems failures and problems around the station.

Dax 46910.1

When Jadzia Dax (Terry Farrell) is arrested and accused of murder and treason, Sisko tries to prevent her extradition and enlists Kira, Odo, and Dr. Bashir to help in her defense. Tandro: Gregory Itzin. She is suspiciously silent.

The Passenger 46925.0*

When an alien (James Harper) dies en route to Deep Space Nine, his plans to steal a rare substance from the station are not thwarted -- he transfers his consciousness into another being's mind, in particular, Dr. Bashir's. Ty Kajada: Caitlin Brown.

Move Along Home 46930.0*

Sisko, Dax, Bashir, and Kira meet a delegation from the Gamma quadrant. Being their first contact with the Wadi, Sisko wants to put the best foot forward; however, the visitors are more interested in Quark's games and gambling.

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

Notes

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

Colophon

This document contains an episode list for Star Trek: Deep Space Nine, presented in stardate order. It is meant to be compact and convenient, for the coffee table, near the remote control. I know you will enjoy it.

I'd like to thank Mark Holtz and Harold Stein for news and proper spellings. A special thanks to Darren Sager for the graphic on the cover.

The descriptions are almost straight copies of TV guide listings as found in the Globe & Mail's Broadcast Week, Toronto Star's Starweek, and Telemedia's TV GUIDE. I am not claiming copyright.

An asterisk (*) denotes a fictitious or estimated stardate. Either the narration did not include a date, it is unknown, or the source is outside the show. An invented date positions the episode in Gene Roddenberry's future history time-line.

A dagger (†) marks an episode not yet aired. Often, I have no plot description nor do I know the stardate.

This 6-page file is called DS9EPLST.xxx. A WordPerfect 5.1 (release 07/09/92) column document, the "xxx" extension indicates the type of printer it was designed for: an Epson LQ-510 (EPS) or Hewlett-Packard LaserJet duplex printer (HP3). I copied the entries from my indexed database video tape catalog to generate this guide.

I generated this revision at hours EST on .

Don't miss the cool companion guide for Star Trek: The Next Generation. It's available now!

Electronic copies of this guide are available. Specify if you want a hard or soft copy, media size, and send $2.00 to cover shipping. It is uploaded to Canada Remote Systems and various U.S. BBSs. Suggestions, comments, corrections, or requests are welcome. Send or telephone queries to:

Blake Nancarrow
2409 Yonge Street, Apt. 4
Toronto, Ontario, Canada, Earth
Sol/Jup III sector 0,0,1
M4P 2E7
(416) 488-2572

CRS id: BLAKE NANCARROW
CompuServe id: 70511,673

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

The Nagus 46940.0*

The Grand Nagus Zek selects Quark to start Ferengi business ventures in the Gamma Quadrant before he dies of old age. Jealous murder attempts are made on bartender's life. O'Brien teaches while Keiko is on Earth; Jake helps Nog study.

Vortex 46700.0*

When twin Miradorns negotiate with Quark the sale of a expensive object, one is killed. As Odo investigates the incident, the Rakhari criminal refers to him as a changeling, talks of others like Odo, and shows him his shapeshifting amulet.

Battle Lines 46705.0*

Sisko, Kira, and Bashir are trapped on a penal colony moon of eternal war when they crash land. Opaka, accompanying them on the trip through the wormhole, is killed in the crash. Bashir discovers however that people here cannot die.

The Story Teller 46729.1

O'Brien suddenly becomes a Bajoran village's unwilling guru. He must win the confidence of the people before a creature destroys the community. On the station, when Nog and Jake can untie their tongues they advise a young leader on negotiation tactics.

Progress 46844.3

An old Bajoran farmer (Brian Keith) refuses to leave a moon scheduled to be mined. Kira questions her heritage when she tries to force him to evacuate. Meanwhile, on DS9, Nog and Jake learn the art of the deal exploring a business opportunity.

If Wishes Were Horses 46853.2

The crew and habitants are amazed (and sometimes embarrassed) when dreams and fantasies become real, but the occurrences seem linked to a galactic disturbance that threatens the station. Odo allows himself to fantasize about locking up Quark.

The Forsaken[†] 46999.9*

Downloaded data from a mysterious probe causes DS9's computer to crave O'Brien's attention. Meanwhile, Odo finds himself the object of Lwaxana Troi's affections.

Dramatis Personae[†] 46999.9*

Duet[†] 46999.9*

Hands of the Prophets[†] 46999.9*

End of First Season

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star
Trek: The Next Generation

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star
Trek: The Next Generation

STARTREK

DEEP SPACE NINE

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

Episode Guide

Stardate Order

Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Trek: The Next Generation

Blake Nancarrow

0