Details on Registering Microangelo

When you register Microangelo(TM) you will receive a license number which the program will use to recognize you as a customer and prevent the shareware screen from displaying at start-up.

The registration includes a 3.5 disk that contains the most current version of Microangelo.

System Requirements

Microangelo requires Windows 95. Microangelo can edit and manage any size of 16 color icon on all Windows 95 systems. Windows 95 and Microangelo require a video card and monitor capable of rendering more than 256 colors to allow editing and display of 256 color icons. A video mode of 256 colors is not adequate because each icon can contain a different set of 256 colors. (The required modes are commonly referred to as hi-color or true color).

Windows 95 requires a video mode of 256 colors AND the use of 32-bit disk and memory access to provide animated cursors. Users who do not meet all three of these requirements will not be able to use animated cursors produced by The Animator on their systems. A few video cards that support 256 colors do support the hardware options required for animated cursors.

You can check to see if your system uses 32-bit disk and memory access by clicking the Start button, then click Settings, and then Control Panel. Double-click the System icon in the Control Panel to open the System module, then click on the Performance tab.
