Conclusions

- It is a web, not a tree.
- Information is distributed over many different platforms.
- It can include information from small personal notes to large data bases
- W3 has integrated WAIS and Gopher, but the inverse is not possible.
- Information providers do not have to change their habits or convert info: simple servers do the job.