

Hi,

The following icons taken from stills of the Canadian animated series "Reboot" which is on in the US on Saturday morning. Although the time period is for kids shows, Reboot is definitely the Pee Wee's Playhouse of the 90s - only adults may understand most of the jokes (nearly entirely computer humor). The series is such a hit here that Fleer has come out with a series of limited edition trading cards that has claimed at least one victim: me, with about 40 or 50 of them. The show is comprised entirely of computer generated images, and the animation is far beyond anything we've seen in a series so far (other than that, TV in this country still stinks).

These are the main characters in 64x64, ready for your /NextLibrary/Images/People folder. I'm sure that these images have been copyrighted somewhere, so keep them for your personal use only. All the images are 24 bit, and probably look bad in anything less than true color. All images were manipulated hassle-free in TIFFany 2.
