Then let me share my frazzled Calvin face with you! This visage has graced my email messages for the better part of a year now, and I think it sums up my daily attitude nicely.

Well, seeing how Tim's intention of posting an archive of icons to the ftp site has basically crippled the NEXTSTEP community from getting anything constructive done this weekend :-), and the fact that I am also a Calvin and Hobbes junkie, I took Michael_Pizolato's Hobbes icons and colorized them
They have the original 2 bit with alpha (and filled with appropriate white space) as well as 12bit color with a transparent border.

We need some good Bloom County/Outland icons!

Bob Vadnais of NeXT wanted an (ultimate) frisbee icon. The best I could do was the following--Hobbes doesn't want to shrink much further than the following, via WetPaint or T2.

So, if you want an icon, the following will have to do, I guess:

In ultimate speak, there are a variety of ways to describe diving after a frisbee:

- getting flat
- cratering in
- going horizontal
- laying out

P.S. I don't think my scanner was too happy after I dove onto it, but I still made the catch. It had to be done in order to capture the feeling of the art...
