

Future NASA missions will include the launching of new satellites, some so big that they'll have to be assembled in outer space. Communication satellites will be larger and more powerful, so that people will be able to use wrist telephones to talk to anyone, anywhere in the world. In the future we hope to build spaceships that are large and powerful enough to carry people, instead of robots, to explore Pluto. The arrival of humans on Mars would be a great start.