

Photos taken by Voyager 1 and 2 prove that Jupiter has a ring around it, and that Jupiter's moon has a giant active volcano that spits out sulfur compounds. The moons around Jupiter were found to be icy, rocky balls, with fractures and craters.