

elcome to TrashScan!

Lately, there have been a number of high-profile cases involving small computers being hijacked and used as "zombies" against third-party sites. Hackers can sometimes take advantage of weaknesses in personal computers to mask their identities. As the Internet becomes more important and high-speed connections proliferate, this type of activity may very well increase.

But there are steps you can take to help make sure your computer can't be used by miscreants. If you're worried about hackers gaining access to your computer through your network connection, TrashScan may very well be what you're looking for!