Sim Fish gives you not one virtual pet, but an entire school of the little critters. Your job is to take care of the bowl's citizens by making sure that they're fed--but be sure that you don't overfeed them. A 24-hour day is played out in a matter of seconds, so you'd better be on your toes, or your fish might expire. Oh, and there are other surprises, both good and bad, in store for your aquatic community.

Minimum requirements:
Windows 3.x

Compu-Flower-Pet is a virtual pet for your computer. Similar to other conceptual pets like the keychain-sized gadgets popping up all over the place, the goal is to care for your pet or it will die. Key features of the game include considerably more action and complexity in care than other virtual pets, engaging gameplay, and real flower animation.

Minimum requirements:
Windows 95

The Digi-Guppie is an immortal pet for your PalmPilot. It's a bit like the Tamagotchi, and like the much downloaded Digi-Pet. The Digi-Guppie will never die and will continue to swim as long as you've got batteries in your PalmPilot (it won't drain batteries while your machine is off). No more alarms during meetings and no more waking up at 8 a.m. just to feed your Digi-Pet. Select one of three fish.

Minimum requirements:
PalmPilot
