

Female conelets are often at the base of the new growth and in the top of the tree.