

Genus Celtis

There are 3 species of Celtis native to Indiana, only 2 of which are tree-size. They have elm-like leaves that have inequilateral leaf bases and often serrate margins. Their bark is unique with warty, gray lumps and ridges.