ENCRYPTION TOOL

Carrick is a Windows-based encryption tool that works as both a standalone application or from within any Windows application that can access a DLL. It lets you implement encryption using the new Blowfish algorithm. The SDK includes four API calls, a standardized file header, a default file extension (CAR), and a cryptographic protocol that ensures file security. Carrick allows optional sender authentication and date/time stamping. A demo version is available from Azalea's home page on the Internet. $159 for single users; $199 for a two-copy bundle. Available now.
