Company Biography

Free Radical Design is a videogame development company based in Nottingham, UK. Currently, we are working on “TimeSplitters” a title to be released on the Sony Playstation2 in 2000.

The company was founded in April 1999 and quickly secured a prestigious publishing deal with Eidos. The deal was reported in the national UK press and also online and in print by worldwide games industry journalists.

The company founders are a highly motivated group who have proven industry experience and success.

Notably, they have -

- worked for a world-renowned development house (Rare Ltd)

- over 25 yrs cumulative experience in the videogame industry

- leading credits on highly successful products

- skills covering all aspects of development (design, software, art, music)

- a proven ability to work closely as a team

This core development team are all ‘baby boomers’ who grew up with the modern phenomena of computer entertainment and have watched their childhood passion mature into a billion dollar industry which now has a real credibility in modern culture.

Their raw enthusiasm has been tempered with industry experience and they are now hungry for the opportunity to produce premiere products for the new millennium

Since early 1999, through selective recruitment of only the best animators, artists and programmers, the company has expanded to 14 individuals. With these highly motivated people, we believe that Free Radical has one of the most creative and well focused teams in the industry.

Summary

In videogame development the combination of talented individuals into a well-managed productive team is critical for the timely delivery of high quality software. At Free Radical Design we believe we have assembled a dedicated nucleus of staff with proven skills in their chosen areas.

Our collective experience lies in the development of high-profile premiere product for cutting edge videogame consoles and we fully intend to continue in that tradition.
