

MAC SHEEN - Mac is actually a “robot” with a human face stretched over his own metal head

-he’s a Data of sorts, in that he has inhuman reactions and tendencies to certain situations

-Mac was actually created by Karn and Domination in order to penetrate a small group of seven teenagers camped in Death Crater (the charred area filled with space debris surrounding Karn’s palace).

-Mac’s orders were to penetrate the group as a survivor of a Domination attack, and then terminate the entire group

-having penetrated the seven “teenagers”, Mac tried to fit in by consuming a liquid beverage; this short circuited his entire system, completely destroying his mission encodement, and leaving in its place a “blank slate” of a robot/person

-Mac is the group’s fix-it character; if you need anything fixed, just ask Mac

-the interesting aspect is that Mac Sheen actually becomes his invention, acting as a sort of “battery” for the creation.

Thus the presence of the multitude of plug-ins and attachment portals on his body

-Mac is the second part of the “wild trio”

-Mac desperately wants to not only be human, but be a cool human. Therefore he is constantly taking “cool” lessons from Wex, and in the background we occasionally catch Mac emulating Wex’s slick cool moves

-Mac wears his “9” on the back of his yellow leather vest on a sort of “biker patch”, with red denim jeans and cool black leather boots. This fits his personality in that everything he’s wearing is intrinsically cool, but a yellow vest? Red jeans? Close. But no cigar, Mac....