

APPLE PROGRAMMER'S AND DEVELOPER'S ASSOCIATION

As an independent programmer or developer of Apple-compatible software or hardware, you need fast access to the latest technical information and development tools.

Now there's a place where you can get it: the Apple Programmer's and Developer's Association (APDA).

APDA is a one-stop source for the Apple programmer. Members get timely and easy access to many of the Apple development tools and technical information necessary to speed development projects. No more wondering, "Where do I go for the information I need?"

Whether you're looking for programming tools, technical notes, or manuals, now you have a single, convenient source. All these Apple materials along with selected products from other vendors are available to APDA members with one simple phone call.

IS APDA FOR YOU?

APDA was created to serve the needs of the entire Apple programming community. Membership is open to anyone who needs advanced tools and information in order to create Apple-compatible products.

APDA is ideal for:

% Apple enthusiasts writing software for commercial or noncommercial distribution.

% Educators and students developing curriculum-related materials.

% Consultants configuring specialized software or hardware for clients.

% Professional programmers and hardware developers.

Whether you make a full-time living from writing Apple software or just want to have ready access to the tools you need, membership in APDA could be just what you've been looking for.

PRODUCTS WE OFFER

Here are some of the products you'll be able to order as an APDA member:

% Apple II and Macintosh* development tools, system software, technical notes and manuals.

% Languages and development tools from a variety of third-party companies.

% Technical books, including the entire Apple Technical Library from Addison-Wesley.

Apple hardware and Apple-labeled software will continue to be available only from your local authorized Apple dealer.

WHO WE ARE

APDA is a subsidiary of the A.P.P.L.E. Co-op, one of the first and largest Apple User Groups in the country. We have extensive experience with providing software and documentation to Apple enthusiasts, and will be working in full cooperation with Apple Computer to get you the up-to-date information and tools you need.

BENEFITS

As an APDA member, you'll have fast, reliable access to the tools you need to develop Apple-compatible products.

A quarterly catalog/newsletter will give you full details on all available products. Regular bulletins will keep you up-to-date between newsletters. To order, use APDA's toll-free 800 number or our on-line ordering system. For your convenience, APDA accepts VISA and MasterCard. Better yet, you can subscribe to APDA's automatic ordering service and receive a copy of every new product or category of product as soon as it's in stock.

APDA's services will continue to expand to best meet the needs of our members.

JOIN TODAY

An APDA individual membership is easy to obtain, and dues are only $20 per year. Just complete the application in the Membership Agreement and Application, mail it to us with your check or credit card information, and start enjoying APDA's fast, easy one-stop service for Apple developers.

If you need information just give us a call, or write (our address and phone are at the end of the Application Form).

Apple Programmer's and Developer's Association

Membership Agreement and Application

1. Purpose of the Association

The purpose of the Apple Programmer's and Developer's Association (the association) is to promote the development of products that are compatible with Apple computers. Apple has authorized the distribution through the association of several technical documents and Apple software products (such as tools, utilities, and languages) that will be useful to developers of Apple-compatible products. These products are not available through Apple dealers. In addition, the association distributes Apple-compatible software products and solutions from third-party vendors. Thus, the association provides a one-stop service for programmers and developers working with Apple hardware.

2. Benefits of Membership

Membership in the association gives members the right to acquire Apple-compatible products and information services through the association. In addition, members will receive a quarterly newsletter containing notices of the availability of new products, detailed product descriptions, and a price list.

AGREEMENT

By signing the Apple Programmer's and Developer's Association application, the applicant hereby applies for membership in the association and, if accepted by the association as a member, agrees to the following terms of membership:

1. Membership Fee

Upon paying a yearly membership fee of $20, applicant will have the right for one year to acquire products and other services from the association at regularly published prices (less any applicable discounts), and to receive the quarterly newsletter.

2. Terms and Conditions for Apple Computer Products

a. Software products will be subject to a license agreement.

Applicant acknowledges and agrees that all Apple Computer software products available through the association will be licensed (not sold) to the applicant, and that those software products will be shipped to the applicant with a license agreement attached to the product. Applicant may obtain copies of the license agreement in advance from the association, if desired. Applicant agrees that by using the product, applicant will be bound by the terms of the license. If applicant does not agree to the license terms, applicant may return the unopened product to the association within three days of receipt, and receive a full refund.

b. Applicant's acknowledgment of the nature of the products distributed by the association.

Applicant represents to the association that applicant is a software or hardware developer, and has substantial experience in computer programming and in using programmers tools and utilities in the development of software. Applicant understands and acknowledges that the products distributed through the association are of a highly technical nature, and that neither the association, nor Apple Computer, Inc., nor authorized Apple dealers will offer the applicant technical support in the use of such products.

Applicant further acknowledges and understands that many of the products may contain errors, and that the documentation for the products may be nonexistent, incomplete (working documents only), or inaccurate.

Applicant understands that most or all of these products will be licensed or sold without warranty of any kind whatsoever, and that, pursuant to the license agreements under which the products are licensed, neither the association nor Apple Computer, Inc. will be responsible for any lost profits, lost data, or any other kind of direct or indirect damage that may result from the use of the products.

c. No right to distribute.

Applicant acknowledges that under the license agreements, applicant will have no right to further distribute products produced by Apple Computer, Inc. and acquired through the association. Licenses for further distribution may be obtained from the Apple Computer Licensing Department, Mail Stop 28-B, 20525 Mariani Avenue, Cupertino, California 95014.

3. Policies and Conditions for Third-Party Products

Software and other products from third-party producers range from full commercial versions to preliminary releases. License agreements, warranties, commercial distribution policies, and other conditions vary.
