Big Picture Window
Another option from the Tools menu is "Big Picture Window."

hen this option is desired, you can access it in the following manner:

Step 1
Open either the Mac OS Error window or Sad Mac Error window and select or type in an error. The example shown below is error -26995 (about_to_unload_objects). Note that the cursor changes to a magnifying glass when it is over the explanation text.

tep 2

Click the mouse when you see the magnifying glass and the following enlarged screen will appear.

he size of this window will be about as big as your monitor screen.

You can also paste the error name to the clipboard. Moving the cursor over an error name while pressing the option key and selecting the error will paste the name to the clipboard. Note that the cursor changes to a pencil when this is done.

he error name is now on the clipboard and can be pasted into a document.

Selecting Big Picture Window from the menu allows you to bring that window to the front.

Click on the Close button to close the window
