Sprites store information like when and where a cast member should be displayed, how large it should be, and if any special effects should be applied.