

John Polanyi's reaction game

John Polanyi actually used dissociated hydrogen gas and hydrogen chloride in his Nobel prize winning experiment, but hydrogen fluoride is very similar. Polanyi discovered many details about the transition state of the reaction; the instant of the collision between the H and HF. He inferred what was happening by examining the infra-red radiation created by the reaction during the transition state.

© 1996 Softshell Small Systems Software Design Inc.
All rights reserved