

IBM's SecureWay* line of hardware, software, consulting and services helps customers protect their information assets and resources. These range from a worldwide I/T Security consulting practice to help customers manage and design secure systems; firewalls and other services both to prevent security breaches and to respond to emergencies; and hardware and software products that put our security technologies into action such as cryptographic products and smart cards to mention a few. Whether addressing an individual or creating a total enterprise solution, IBM SecureWay* offerings provide the expertise required to plan, design, implement and operate secure solutions for businesses. Additional information on these offerings can be found through the IBM SecureWay* home page at <http://www.ibm.com/Security>.
