

DAVID CARSON

David Carson makes his motion picture directorial debut with "Star Trek Generations." The award-winning director of British documentaries and telefilms has also directed more than 50 stage productions for London's leading regional theater companies.

His television work in the U.S. includes the series "Star Trek: The Next Generation," "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine" (including the pilot), and many other critically acclaimed television series, pilots, television movies and music videos.

His European work includes "Sherlock Holmes -- The Musgrave Ritual" (directed as part of a four film series for television), which won the Edgar Allen Poe Award for Best TV Mystery in 1988. Also for that series Carson directed "The Blue Carbuncle," "The Resident Patient" and "The Six Napoleons."