Too many people have contributed to the development of File Buddy either directly or indirectly to name them all individually. A few that deserve special mention are (in chronological order):

Oliver Steele, a great Mac programmer, whose help and encouragement some years ago at the beginning of my Mac programming experience kept me from being overwhelmed and giving up.

Bill Monk, another helpful programmer (and author of System 7's Find File) that got me through some rough spots in Alias Director (from which File Buddy is descended).

Don and Sylvia Stanat, for support and patience during a really tough time that coincided with the the development of Alias Director and the early stages of File Buddy.

My dad, for my PowerMac. Without it, I wouldn't have had the patience to do what was required for version 3.4 and beyond. (Send those fees so I can repay what I owe him. :-)

Most of all, thanks to all the File Buddy users who have registered File Buddy. It's their support that has kept File Buddy going as far as it has.
