No Need for External Hardware Peripherals or Expensive Software Plugins - sonicWORX Studio's flexible processing scheme lets you custom tailor your audio material to fit your needs without using external hardware and huge rack mount units of expensive post-production gear. All functions you normally do in external studio peripherals can now be accomplished from one user interface and without worrying about cabling problems and introduction of noise when transferring the material to external analogue hardware. Here are some features sonicWORX Studio offers, imagine how much money you would spend purchasing all of them separately.
