Help

This command brings up the online help facility. The help facility is the window you're looking at now.

How to use the online help facility

To get help on a particular topic, choose that topic from the popup menu above.

If you have questions about a particular thing (such as a menu item or something in a dialog box), press command-?. The cursor will turn into a question mark. As long as the cursor is a question mark, anything you select will open the help facility to information about the selected thing.

You can also turn on balloon help from the standard help menu (or by pressing the "Help" key on an extended keyboard) to get less detailed information on dialog box elements and menu items.

The Help Dialog

The Help dialog box has a few controls of it's own:

• Topics popup menu: This has a list of all the topics in the online help facility and manual. Select a topic to get information on it.

• Previous button

• Next button: These buttons take you to the previous topic and next topic.
