MacTriv 3.2

Welcome to MacTriv. Please refer to the "Read Me" document for full playing instructions and other help on MacTriv's features. This program is completely free, and I welcome and encourage copying of the program to as many people as possible! Please note that although free, this program is copyright and not in the public domain. If you received this copy of MacTriv without the user documentation, or would like to receive updates and other free programs I have written, please send a self-addressed envelope and a disk to:

Graham Cox,
6, Hellesdon Mews,
Hellesdon Mill Lane,
Norwich, NR6 5DA
UNITED KINGDOM

I also appreciate it very much if I receive the odd post card from around the world from anyone who took the trouble to send one- I like to see how far my programs travel! "EgoWare" if you like...

Credits:

Martin Frost, Apple Techie extraordinaire and good mate for uploading this for me.
Stephen Baxter for constructive comments, testing, and help compiling the questions.
Ed Haynes for putting up with my boring beta demos.
Tom Taylor-Duxbury for showing me a Macintosh in 1986.
Boo Hewerdine and Andy White for their brilliant songs.
Thanks also to Pete, Clare, Brett, Miriam, Steve (again), Tamsin, Elena, Martina, Cally, Fiona and Diane. You're great!
