

Automatic Dismissal

If this check box is checked, when ever the mouse is dragged outside the menu area (it's rectangle) the menu will automatically be dismissed. In other words, you don't have to click the mouse any more if you decide you don't want to select a menu item. AutoMenus Pro compensates for scrolling menus by not dismissing it when the mouse cursor goes outside the bottom of the menu and adds a little extra cushion at the top.

NOTE: In order to escape from a scrolling menu, you must either press the mouse button or move the cursor to the left, top, or right of the menu.
