Notebook Maker   1.3

This application will allow you to take a standard Macintosh TEXT file of data, and create a stand-alone 'Notebook' application which includes that information in an easy to browse and search format.

The window that you are currently viewing is an example of a Notebook window—Notebook Maker is essentially a Notebook which has the additional functionality of allowing you to create and edit other Notebooks.

Once the Notebook application has been created, you can use Notebook Maker to attach pictures to individual topics if you wish (thus your topics can be illustrated, as are some of the topics in this documentation).

Notebook Maker can also create 'Command Set' files for use with the application 'Commander' (also by Golden Micro Solutions—see the 'About Commander' topic).