Icons
(The adventure continues...)

Nothing humanizes computing quite like customizing things. That's why Microsoft decided to let you customize all your icons. Whenever you get tired with how a program's icon looks, change it! Also, while Windows applications generally have their own custom icons, DOS-based programs don't, and when you place them on your Windows Program Manager screen, they have only the boring generic icons that Windows provides. Softdisk's icon sets, such as this one, give you more choices.

This Issue
The icons for this issue are in the file ICONS034.DLL. You can press the How to Use button for more information on how to install and use them and the Manager button to view them or delete them.
