

Sounds

(A chilling set for All Hallow's Eve)

Do you have a sound card (such as a SoundBlaster) and sound driver installed in your Windows? Do you have the Windows sound driver to let you play sounds on the regular PC speaker? If you do, you may be able to listen to and use these Wave files. Wave files are simply digitized sounds. They can be used for audio feedback to standard system messages in Windows, or just for fun, even if you don't use Windows!

This Issue

Here's a new collection of Wave (*.WAV) files. If you installed Softdisk using the default settings, you can simply double-click on the sound names to hear them. Press the How to Use button for more information on how to install them and the Manager button to listen to them or delete them.
