

What is a QuickTime movie?

A QuickTime movie is a Macintosh file that can contain video images, animation, and sound.

Movies that contain video or animation are made up of a series of still images played in succession. Each image is called a frame.

Many programs let you paste and play QuickTime movies in ordinary Macintosh documents such as word-processing files and presentations.