

A movie is said to have a dependency if it uses movie segments copied from other files but does not store these segments in its own file on disk.

The original files must be present for the movie to play.