†... Version: "7.0" ...

- 1) go into system folder and remove:
Adobe Registration Database
Adobe Illustrator prefs (if they exist)
- 2) reboot w/ extensions off
- 3) perform easy install
- 4) check the button licensed to 'individual'
use this serial number:
AAW600R1534729-959
AAW600R1534729-959
- 5) follow the entire registration procedure
fill in all the info, etc...
choose the 'print-out' registration option at the end
then u can save it to a file instead of printing if ya want
- 6) restart when it asks ya to
- 7) and voila! have fun illustrating :)

†Just in case you haven't been using your Adobe Type On Call CD as a coaster, you might like to know that Norton Utilities can pull off every single font on the CD. It's easy.

First, find Norton Disk Doctor (which contains the UnErase functionality) on your hard drive and give it a lot of RAM. There are over 12,000 files on the CD... when you pull them off, you're going to need a good 16 MB or so. I promise you that adding RAM to the "Open Unerase" program will do nothing... all it does is launch Disk Doctor and run a quick script. Disk Doctor is what you need to add RAM to.

Then just stick in the CD and run Norton. Go to "Unerase." Let it do it's automatic thing, which will turn up a handful of files. Click "Search Again" and do a "Directory Scan" searching NOT for "Erased Files" but for "Real Files (used portions of the disk)." Click OK. In a few seconds (or minutes, depending on your computer) you'll see all the fonts perfectly intact.

The files with wack names (f_____.ldkjj) and stuff are presumably unix font files, since the CD is a hybrid for unix, mac, and windows. The CD this works for me with is TOC 4.0. It may not work on more recent versions of the disc.

Despite the fact that some postscript files come across with Beanie icons, they seem to work perfectly
