

Longitude and latitude is the coordinate system used to locate points on the Earth's surface. Latitude and Longitude are measured in units of Degrees. With the Origin being the intersection of the Equator and the longitude line going through Greenwich, England.