

Browserola is a 'browser emulator.' With it, Web designers can quickly and easily see how their pages look in different browsers without having to have the browsers installed. It was designed to let you see your creations as others may see them, giving you a better chance to make corrections. It can also be accessed directly from HTML editors, making it easy to use.