

ICQ, recently bought by AOL is used by millions of Internet users around the world to communicate. It's a great product, but its identification by number isn't as friendly as AOL Instant Messenger's screen names.