

Mosaic has been influential on the evolution of the modern Web browser. Not only was it the first Web browser available on several computer platforms with the same interface, the source code was licensed out to other companies including Netscape. Although the Mosaic Web browser has been long since superseded by better browsers, it still remains a useful and reliable browser.