

Fever Image Cataloguing is designed to organise large collections of images, which web designers, will doubtless find useful for their Web site graphics. Find a folder of images and the program will automatically begin drawing thumbnails of its contents. The thumbnails can be viewed in different sizes and at different quality settings. You can attach pictures of highlighted thumbnails to a message in your email client.