

Create textures for composing groovy Web page background tiles. All tiles tessellate, which basically means, when placed edge to edge the pattern matches seamlessly so you can effectively build up a large image from one single tile. This works particularly well with Web pages since one small texture tile image can be used to fill an entire Web page background giving a instant snazzy appearance without adding too much time to the total download time of the page.