

Downloading is the process of transferring files or information to your computer, from another computer connected to the Internet. Downloading is most common during FTP sessions. Many programs and files are downloaded from the World Wide Web as well.