

Username is what your Internet Service Provider gives to you when you sign up with their service. It is used to login to their servers, and normally for your email address, like `username@server.com`.