FTP, or File Transfer Protocol is a method of retrieving files from other computers, called servers.   FTP allows users to see what is available on FTP servers, and if there is something they want, they can download it to their computer.