

Great gadget gift guide

2003

If you're still stuck for Christmas gift inspiration then look no further.

Wendy Brewer and Rosemary Haworth have put together 50 of the funkiest and downright desirable gadgets, games and PC treats available, so hopefully you won't end up with a yuletide turkey

It's an overwhelming time of year. For months now we've been bombarded by heavy ad campaigns on the TV, rotating between end-of-year award shows and Christmas specials. You wake each morning to the thud of yet another gift catalogue crashing on to your doormat, the radio crackles into life and treats you to an oh-so-original rendition of Jingle Bells niftily remastered as a plug for a furniture outlet, mobile phone store or emergency plumbing service.

You name it, anyone and everyone hijacks Christmas as a way of marketing their goods. Little wonder when it's the most lucrative time of the year, particularly for consumer electronics manufacturers that rely on our generosity to loved ones and who advertise fantastic-looking cameras, TVs and the rest. Of course, you wouldn't normally dream of spending £500 on a camcorder but, well, the kids will love it and it is Christmas after all.

Even the web is treacherous territory for the spendthrift in the months leading up to the festive season, with innumerable shopping portals doing a great trade. Last year, Royal Mail and Parcelforce were expecting to deliver around 10 million Christmas gifts ordered online. Chances are, this year the figure will be higher still.

Spoilt for choice? Not half

Despite all this, in the two weeks before 25 December, all but the most organised suddenly wake up to the fact that there's just days to go and 10 presents still to find. You've a head full of gift ideas, but no idea what's worth having and what's destined to gather dust on top of the recipient's wardrobe. That's where, for technology fans at least, PC Advisor comes to the rescue. If it's a dinky gadget, slimline PC or a funky digital camera you're after, look no further. From gaming kit and knick-knacks to the swankiest phones and smartest PCs, there's something to please everyone and every budget in our great gadget gift guide.

01 Aiptek Pocket DV Camcorder

DV (digital video) camcorders are all the rage, but they aren't cheap. Aiptek's little number, however – and we're talking cigarette packet-sized here – will give you a taste of home moviemaking without requiring a Hollywood budget. A tripod and flip-out arm containing a viewfinder are about as complex as the Aiptek gets so it's a doddle to use. It stores an impressive amount of video, audio and stills, has a USB PC connection and its size and price are hardly to be sniffed at.

02 JVC GR-DVL767

In a nutshell, the GR-DVL767 offers 530 lines of horizontal resolution, a 1.02Mp (megapixel) CCD (charge-coupled device), digital stills of up to a resolution of 1,280x960 and a 500x super digital zoom. JVC has concentrated on novices by including its Digital Photo Navigator, which makes image resizing, slideshows and web files creation easy. The finished product can then be stored on the 8MB SD (secure digital) memory card.

03 Panasonic NVMX 350B

Panasonic's semi-professional NVMX 350B digital device is ideal for all you serious photographers out there. This high-end camcorder boasts Bluetooth adaptability, a 12x optical zoom lens, SD and multimedia card slots and a 3.5in LCD (liquid crystal display). It is capable of producing 1.8Mp still images and 540 lines of video resolution. The camera is bundled with an SD voice recorder, 8MB SD card and ArcSoft PhotoImpression.

05 Gigabyte Maya II R9700 Pro

ATI's Radeon chip, which reached pole position in our Top 10 Graphics cards chart in December, has a 256bit memory interface and 128MB of DDR (double data rate) RAM. This should keep the memory pipelines clear, allowing you to enjoy crystal-clear graphics. The high-end card also offers an increased number of pixel and vertex shaders and 128bit floating point precision colour.

07 Microsoft Xbox

With a huge amount of marketing hype, Microsoft made its console debut this year. Based around a 733MHz Pentium III processor and an nVidia GeForce3 graphics chip, the Xbox isn't pretty but the visuals it creates are certainly stunning. With built-in broadband gaming functionality plus the dedicated online service Xbox Live, which is due for imminent UK launch, we rate Xbox the king of consoles.

- Price: £979 ex VAT

19 Sony Vaio C1MHP

This diminutive Vaio subnotebook would make a perfect Christmas present for anyone who needs to work on the move, as it is small enough to slip into a large coat pocket. Weighing just 988g, the C1MHP boasts a digital-still and video motion eye camera for image capture and video-conferencing. The Sony also features Bluetooth connectivity and there's the recent addition of an external iLink optical drive bundled with the device.

- Sony: www.vaio-link.com
- Price: £1,619 ex VAT

20 Eclipse TD 512 speakers

Almost as attractive to a teenage boy as Britney Spears, the TD 512 speakers have plenty of oomph to back up their sleek proportions. They offer a single line-level pair of inputs to the amp, the base is the power supply and the amplification module sits on top. Above that is a huge volume knob, which we're sure will be turned to the max come Christmas Day.

- Eclipse: www.eclipse-td.com
- Price: £875 inc VAT

21 Karma Chameleon telephone

Desert lovin' in your eyes all the way; if you listened to my lies. No, you're not dreaming, this really is the chameleon phone that plays along to that 1980s Culture Club ditty. Blame the BT Together ad, but some loons have made the phone for real. If you fancy this limited edition device, you'd better be quick – we predict a sellout.

- Asos: www.asos.com

24 Advent Lifestyle

Advent, the brand name of PC World's desktop machines, launched a 'technology showcase' PC in time for Christmas last year. Its popularity led PC World to repeat the exercise this year with a highly upgradable 2GHz machine boasting a 15in TFT screen, nVidia graphics and plenty of connectivity types including FireWire and Memory Stick. Even the keyboard sports USB ports so digital cameras and other add-ons can easily be plugged in.

27 Jadetec MicroPC 4

Tiny is the buzzword here:

the Jadetec measures

just 198x161x62mm

(about the size of a subnotebook) and

weighs 1,250g,

meaning you could easily carry it from place to place. The machine runs on a 1.7GHz P4 processor, 256MB of

DDR RAM and a 30GB hard drive. The MicroPC 4 may be small but it's still pretty powerful and far more attractive than your average system.

36 Wacom Graphire2 mouse and pen set

Intrigued by the idea of Tablet PCs and using a pen-like device to input copy? A graphics tablet provides far more control than a mouse and lets you draw with greater precision. Wacom's version may not have the appeal of some of the cool gadgetry showcased here, but having tried it out with the bundled Photoshop Elements 2.0 and Corel Painter Classic we're convinced creating fine art on a PC is possible.

○ Wacom: www.wacom-europe.com ○ Price: £73 inc VAT

37 Grand Theft Auto 3

If the mean streets have always been appealing rather than downright intimidating, get yourself downtown pronto. Keep an eye out and a handy left hook at the ready for the nefarious ne'er-do-wells whose company you'll be keeping and make sure your foot is firmly on the gas as you screech out of firing range of the Mafioso and cops. Described by one reviewer as "every bad boy's dream", GTA3 is about as thrilling as driving gets.
